Bundaberg's first choice for local news

Bundaberg's first choice for local news Just four hours' drive or 45 minutes by plane from the bustling metropolis of Brisbane, Bundaberg is the start of the Southern Barrier Reef and each year hundreds of marine turtles hatch their babies at Mon Repos turtle conservation site. With a thriving agriculture industry, worth an estimated $500 million per annum, the region is considered the food bowl capital of Australia and its internationally recognised leading brands of Bundaberg Brewed Drinks.

Macadamia Australia and Bundaberg Rum are just some of the innovative companies to call this region home. The region is building up to become the front runner in food technology and processing, renewable energy, advanced manufacturing and agricultural technology.

In the Bundaberg Regional Council, Health Care and Social Assistance is the largest employer. Bundaberg has three hospitals, each planning major expansions over the coming years, including a new level 5 hospital. Bundaberg's proximity to both Brisbane and the Great Barrier Reef, combined with its diverse attractions including the Mon Repos turtle conservation site, the Hinkler Hall of Aviation, the Botanic Gardens and the Bundaberg Rum Distillery among others, make the region a popular tourist destination.
